

Abstract: Conditionings related to high-efficiency gas microcogeneration application in buildings with differentiated demand for heat and power were presented. Amendments to the European and domestic legislation were described concerning the methodology of appointing energy characteristics. For chosen referential objects a profitability of applying the gas MCHP XRGI microcogeneration by determining the time of the repayment of investments was appointed.